FERVID PARADE IN SAIGON

Nobody, in their the Parade as All Democrats Were in Line—Mingling of Music and Exhortation Was Very Inspiring.
 "My Democrats," with the Saugerties
 Band and the Colonel's Life and Drum Corps paraded in Saugerties on Friday night for two hours. By borrowing men from neighboring towns and inducing a number of suffragettes to join in, about 400 persons were included in the procession that marched through the streets of Republican Saugerties which were lined with thousands of Republican Sau-meritarians, who with their customary good nature and courtesy viewed the spectacle calmly. There were no demonstrations of approval, as all of the Democrats in the town were in the parade, leaving none as spectators to cheer them. Those in the ranks were enthusiastic and did plenty of cheering for themselves. Especially inspiring were the sights and sounds as the parade was passing through one of the main streets, the band playing and the marching Democrats singing.

"Hail, hail, the gang's on deck," a stentorian voiced parader discovered the one lone Democrat in the town who was not already marching and exhorted him thusly:

"Get in line, get in line, stand up for Jesus."
and the marching Democrats continued in chorus the Democratic anthem:
"What the hell do we care."

NEW WAYS WITH CODFISH.

Codfish is one of the foods in reach of any market and should be quite reasonable in price. The mention of codfish to many brings visions of white sauce; this sameness in serving this good fish is the reason that has prejudiced many against it. We may now buy codfish shredded, in cans, free from bones in boxes or filets neatly trimmed ready for the company dinner. Test the different brands until one finds the best. Codfish may be served in balls, as escaloped, boiled and served with drawn butter and a few chopped pickles, baked in layers with mashed potatoes, fried in butter and served with boiled or baked potatoes, and then we may always fall back upon the good old standby which most of us enjoy occasionally, creamed codfish with baked potatoes.

If you want to try a new sensation in combinations use sour cream to make the white sauce for codfish, the bit of acid is especially attractive with the fish.
Boiled cod and fish served with cream sauce is nice for a change. Stir into a tablespoon of melted butter, a tablespoonful of curry and one cupful of boiling water; cook and stir until it thickens, pour over the fish and dust with pepper.
Creamed Codfish.—For a pint of milk and a pint of shredded codfish add the yolk of two eggs, a slice of onion, a blade of mace, a sprig of parsley, one tablespoonful of butter and two of flour. Put the milk on to scald in a double boiler, with the seasonings, add the flour and butter cooked together, then the beaten yolks and cook until the eggs are set. Put a layer of this sauce in a buttered dish, then a layer of fish, and then another layer of sauce until all is used. Pour over the top the beaten whites of the eggs, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake until brown.

Codfish Gruel.—Mix a tablespoonful of fresh codfish with two tablespoonfuls of flour, add a cupful of boiling water, and simmer until well cooked; add butter or cream and serve with crisp crackers.

Kingstonian Boilers

Has Any One Explained This Coal-Saving Point to You?

When you want to boil water quickly to poach an egg for breakfast, you don't put the water in a deep narrow-bottomed kettle. Not a bit of it. You get a big, broad-bottomed pan and put a little water in it and it boils almost while you are cracking the egg.

The Kingstonian Boiler acts just like that broad-bottomed pan does. If you could pull out straight the flutes over the fire, you would have just twice as big a flat surface.

That's one reason why it heats quicker and with less coal than other boilers.

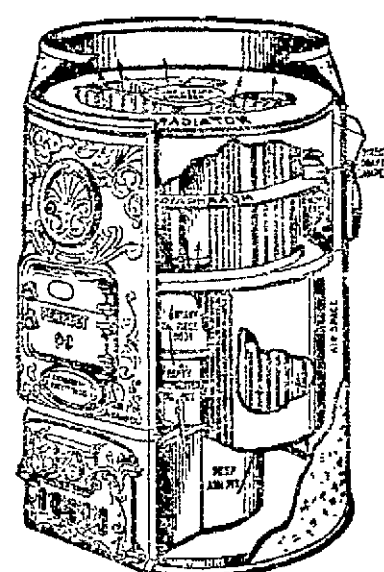

Because it saves coal, we sell it. Because it saves coal you should buy it.

Hurley, Nov. 11.—On account of Hurley Avenue being torn up in Kingston, while undergoing alterations into a state road, the State Highway Department has posted signs designating detours from Kingston to Hurley and thus beyond. It may be said that, as yet, vehicles can and do use the old road to Kingston, although they find it rather rough traveling within the city limits. The detours include that by Lucas Turnpike to Hurley Cross Roads, whence Hurley is reached by a rather steep hill locally called Chestnut Ridge. This hill in addition to being quite steep, is also very narrow in places and automobiles especially should be careful in using it on this account. The other detour is by way of the Mountain Road from Kingston through Mutton Hollow and the state road to the Mountain Road to Hurley and beyond. This road is also very narrow in places and has also a number of curves so that automobiles must exercise caution here also.

The bridge over the Esopus creek, near by Cutler's Hotel and connecting with the lane to the Mountain Road is undergoing extensive alterations; it has been thoroughly repainted, the old flooring has been taken up and a new one is in process of being laid. This is composed of heavy oak planks placed across the bridge, giving eventually a smooth, easy floor for travel. The bridge is now closed for traffic by order of the County Superintendent of Highways, and barriers have been placed, one near Cutler's Hotel on the east and one on the west side near the Mountain Road. The bridge may be used for traffic, by courtesy of the contractor, before 8 a. m. and after 4:30 p. m., and all vehicles had better keep this in mind. This condition may last nearly two weeks. There is no proper fording of the creek.

Conference of Probation Officers.
The ninth annual state conference of probation officers will open with a public mass meeting in the new high school auditorium at Poughkeepsie on Sunday afternoon at half after three o'clock. Judge Clearwater, who twice was appointed a probation commissioner of the state of New York by Governor Hughes and who still holds that office by subsequent appointment, will preside, and will deliver an address upon "Probation as an aid to the Administration of Justice." Other addresses will be made by Dr. John H. Finley, Commissioner of Education and Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar College.

Special Features in Play.
In addition to the thrilling scenes of the four act drama, entitled "The Ymer's Daughter," to be given by the young people of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church on Wednesday evening of this coming week, at the Y. M. C. A., Raymond Shew of Beacon, N. Y., a noted vocalist, will sing a solo, and there will be a clever performance of trained chickens, quite appropriate to the farm scene in the drama. Quite aside from the fun and good time to be derived from attending this performance by local talent, a full house is expected as the proceeds are to go toward the building fund of the church.

REACH DIZZY HEIGHTS IN FOOTBALL WORLD

COACH FOLWELL AND HOWARD BERRY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Colgate, Washington and Jefferson and Penn State are teams that have risen to dizzy heights in the football world because the new game has paved the way for them—removed the weight handicap they had to suffer in the other years of the beef era.

Those three colleges have a small enrollment, the average being around 500. It's an almost impossible task to recruit from such a small crowd of pupils a team that could match in weight with colleges where the coaches have 5,000 or more men to draw from. And so, in the other days, when mass plays were in vogue, it was rarely that the lighter elevens could nose out a victory over the heavier ones. They were crushed under the awful bulk of their foes.

All that is changed now. No longer is there a premium on bulk. Brains, speed and trickery count far more than weight. And so this "Small-Fry Trio" has gone out and whaled the wadding out of the biggest enrollment college elevens in the country with startling frequency. Once it merely constituted a "practice game" for Harvard, Yale, Cornell, Pennsylvania and the other "big fellows" to meet W. J., Penn State or Colgate. But not now.

FOOTBALL TEAM IS FAMOUS SWEDES TO VISIT IN SPRING

Panhandle Eleven Organized Fifteen Years Ago at Columbus, Ohio—Has Many Features.

The famous Panhandle football team of Columbus, O., organized 15 years ago by Joseph F. Carr, who is still at its head, is one of the leading organizations of its kind in the United States. The team averages 180 pounds and has many features that make it stand out as a great eleven. There are six brothers playing regular positions on the team and every one of them is a star in his particular position. They are the famous Nesser brothers. They average over 200 pounds each their total weight being close to three-quarters of a ton.

The Panhandles, during the present season, will play a schedule of 14 games that will carry them all over the United States, for it is seldom in any branch of athletic activity that such an organization is found. Another feature of the team is the fact that all of the players are employees of the Pennsylvania railroad in Columbus and have been for a number of years.

GOLF PLAYED BY MOONLIGHT

Daylight Does Not Last Long Enough for Devotees of Philadelphia and Cleveland.

Cartoonists, dreams about golfers getting home to find their children grown up and their automobiles three seasons out of date are not so far off, if golfers at Cleveland and Philadelphia are to be taken as criterions. Daylight doesn't last long enough for these devotees, and on bright moonlight nights they play at their favorite clubs.

Replacing soiled balls with clean white ones prevents losing them, these golfers report.

Prominent Sport Followers Pledge Enough Money to Send Athletic Team to United States.

The visit of a small team of American athletes to Sweden this fall is going to result in big doings in track sports in this country next summer. The appearance of the five American stars—Meredith, Simpson, Loomis, Ward and Murray—in Stockholm, awakened in the breasts of the Scandinavian enthusiasts the desire to send a team to America, which so nearly bore fruit last June. Only a crisis between Sweden and the entente powers, which made it look as though King Gustav's country was about to be embroiled in the big war, prevented the Swedes from sending along a team under Ernie Hjertberg that would have done credit to the northland.

As matters stand now, there is pledged by prominent sport followers in Sweden enough money to send a team of about 15 men to this country. It is felt that should the invitation of the New York Athletic club to the Swedish athletes be repeated next spring, as seems likely now, there will be a popular subscription ample enough to finance a team of twice the size of the one planned last spring. The one factor that would prevent the meet, as it did last spring, is the military situation.

LATERAL PASS NOT POPULAR

Beautiful Play to Watch, a Great Ground Gainer, but Not Tried Often This Season.

The lateral pass hasn't been used very often this year. Many teams tried it out in 1915 and found it too dangerous. It is a beautiful play to watch, a great ground gainer when it is properly executed. But when it fails—run!

The play is a sort of double forward pass, usually worked along the sidelines. The center passes the ball to the quarterback and he slips it to one of his mates—usually an end—who has raced to the sidelines. Upon receiving the pass, Mr. End is supposed to hurl it forward to one of his associates, who, by that time, if on schedule, should be 20 or 30 yards nearer to the opponent's goal line.

In this triple banding of the ball, with the possibility of fumbling, hides the greatest danger. The next man in is making the final pass. If the man elected to make the real run with the ball has reached his station and is "uncovered" by any of his foes, O. K. But the chances are that one of the enemy is lurking in that neighborhood, and when the final heave is made, said enemy leaps into the ozone, extracts therefrom the whirlwind ball and—bloot, bloot!

SPEAKER KEPT HIS PROMISE

Cleveland Star Sacrificed $2,000 in Order to Keep His Word With Pitcher Dubuc.

This speaker sacrificed $2,000 in order to keep his word with Jean Dubuc, the Tiger pitcher. Several weeks before the close of the season, this promise to go along on a post-season tour. Then came an offer to report the world's series for $1,500, and another offer of $500 to play an exhibition game in Cleveland. He turned them all down to go barnstorming.

GOOD BUILDING FOR PIGEONS

It Costs From $1.25 to $1.75 Per Pair for Construction of Pen, Including Fittings.

A gable roof building 10 to 15 feet wide, 6 feet from the floor to the eaves, and 8 to 9 feet to the ridge makes a good pigeon house. A pen 8 by 9 feet will accommodate 25 pairs of pigeons, while 40 pairs may be kept in a pen 8 by 13 feet. The necessary floor space to allow per pair varies from 2 1/2 to 3 square feet, according to the size of the pen, as a pair of birds requires less floor space in large than in small pens. From 30 to 75 pairs of pigeons may be kept to advantage in each pen. It costs from $1.25 to $1.75 a pair to construct pigeon houses, including interior fittings and a small outside pen or fly-way.

Fittings should be as simple as possible and easy to clean. Two nest boxes should be provided for each pair of pigeons, and there should be some extra nests. The nest boxes are usually about 12 inches square, yet some breeders prefer this width and height.

Arrangement of Nest Boxes.

With a depth of 15 to 18 inches. Egg or orange crates may be used for nests, but they are difficult to keep clean and less desirable than nests made with one-inch boards. A good method of construction is to use lumber 12 inches wide for the floor of the nests, arranging each floor so that it will slide on cleats and can be easily removed and cleaned. The nests are usually built in tiers against the rear wall of the pen, extending from the floor to 7 or 8 feet high, but they may also be placed on the side walls. All partitions should be solid to the top of the nests, but it is advisable to use wire netting above the nests for ventilation.

PRODUCING EGGS IN WINTER

First Essential Is Hen Bred for That Particular Purpose—Proper Feeding Is Important.

If you want winter eggs the first essential is a hen that is bred for winter laying. This character of winter laying is inherited from the male bird. The next essential is proper feeding methods.

Many fowls take the feed given them and convert it into fat, while those with the born tendency to lay convert the surplus above that needed for body maintenance into eggs. Every hen is born with a certain number of small ovaries, which the hen will develop if she is fed such feed as she needs to nourish them.

CHICKENS WITH WEAK LEGS

Trouble Caused by Feeding Young Fowls Too Much Protein or by Too Much Heat in Brooder.

Leg weakness in chickens is caused by feeding the young chicks too much protein, or too much heat in the brooder. In case the brooder is overheated reduce the temperature but not to a degree that will make the chicks uncomfortable. In case the difficulty is caused through excess of protein, increase the ash by feeding oyster shells. Leg weakness generally is overcome when conditions are changed by proper feeding methods.

SELL ALL NONLAYING FOWLS

Close Culling of Overfat and Determined Sitters Is Recommended—Bringing High Price.

Old hens are bringing an unusually high price now and for this time of year. A close culling of overfat and determined sitters is recommended. Sell those idle nonproducing hens: if they won't lay in this kind of weather it is a "cinch" that they won't do much this winter.

GET RID OF "STAR BOARDERS"

Early-Molting Fowls Not Efficient if They Persist in Being Broody—Watch the Flock.

It is a poor layer that idles away her time and is not laying now. Early-molting fowls are not efficient producers if they persist in being broody and fail to utilize the favorable season of production. Watch your flock and cull out the "star boarders."

CUNNING OF A FOX.

It Finally Fooled a Hunter and Saved His Own Red Skin.

One dark, foggy morning in autumn, writes a Youth's Companion correspondent, I was hunting in one of our western states. I saw a large red fox come down a low hill. He did not see me, and when he was about fifty feet away I fired. To my disgust I immediately missed him and I immediately let go the other barrel. Down he went, and after a few wild kicks and struggles lay very still. I was about to reload when I noticed that one of the cartridges was very light. Instantly I remembered I had loaded five blue shells with a new brand of powder, but having no more shot I had put them aside. In some way they had been mixed in with the others. To my surprise both the empty shells that I drew from the gun were also blue.

I looked at the shells and then at the fox, and my amazement grew. I could see why my first shot had missed, but not why the second had proved effective, for I was positive that both cartridges contained only powder. I went over to the fox and turned him over with the end of the gun. He seemed as limp as a rag. What nerve he must have to lie there so quietly while I rolled him about! It seemed impossible that he could be pretending.

I took a circuit to the left and hid behind a stump, where I could watch him. Five minutes I waited, but there was no sign of life; then five more minutes, and I decided that he was really dead. But as I was rising to my feet I noticed that his head was slowly moving, turning in the direction that I had taken. The next minute the clever animal was on his feet. He saw me as I raised my gun and sprang behind a log. From the log he reached the shelter of some rocks, and I saw him no more, which in truth pleased me more than it disappointed me.

Our Two Brains.

Nature, according to a new theory, has given us two brains, just as she has given us a pair of eyes, hands and ears, which help each other to do the work of the body.

Every one has two brains, but he uses only one for intellectual purposes. If a man is right handed he uses the left brain. The left handed one uses the right brain. Which brain we are going to use is therefore decided by which hand we make use of first when we are babies.

The brain which is not being used for the intellect helps the other to minister to the body. It also serves as an emergency brain in case of disease or accident. Sometimes memory or speech is destroyed by accident, and if the second brain is trained it may do the work of the other which has been destroyed. It is easier to train the brain in this way if the patient is under thirty years of age.

KINGSTON, N. Y., NOV. 11, 1916.

With election over and the voting propensities of the Washington administration temporarily halted, the much discussed Adamson law can now be judged upon its merits without the injection of any partisan feeling into the discussion. Filing of injunction suits by the railroads in which the railway brotherhoods are made defendants is bound to bring out both sides of the case. The Freeman is still of the opinion that the most searching scrutiny of the provisions of this law cannot read into it any such meaning as would be contained in a measure actually limiting the hours of labor upon the railroads. When Senator Underwood of Alabama stated that the brotherhood representatives had admitted to him that the bill's enactment would mean a wage increase but not a shorter working day, he stripped the measure of its chief alleged virtue, namely, the limiting of the working day of train crews to eight hours. Agitators, before election, were hailing the Adamson act as the Eight Hour Law, but that a majority of the railroad men were fooled is to be doubted when the election returns are viewed. The issue is one of wages, and whether or not Congress has the power to raise the pay of employees of railroads engaged in interstate commerce remains to be determined in the United States Supreme Court when that body passes upon this law. Regardless of such decision, however, the unjust discrimination of this act in favor of the highest paid class of railroad men and absolutely without consideration for the eighty per cent of railroad employees unaffected by its operation is apparent. This great majority of railway workers is bound to be heard from at the next session of Congress, when the Wilson administration will have to acknowledge the justice of its claims or admit that the Adamson act was purely for expediency's sake. The next Congress will also be obliged to straighten out the manifest kinks in the legislation passed for the otherhoods, whose demands it pretended to approve in the act which the courts are now being asked to pass upon.

It is comforting to notice that work on the abutments for the State Highway bridge over the Rondout creek did not terminate with the holding of the election, as one of our newspaper contemporaries feared would be the case. The State Highway Department, as at present constituted, is operating under a far broader policy than that which prevailed during the Dix and Selver regimes. In those days the people were promised a bridge with the advent of every election, and small wonder that the impression gained ground that the whole structure was purely a political fabrication. Today things are different. A contractor is at work on the abutments which will be completed early next year, so that the state can again take up the matter of contracting for the structure proper once the steel market shows signs of returning to prices somewhere near those prevailing before the immense war demand set in. The same comment that is true of the bridge project is true of the proposed canal terminal for Kingston. The local site is advantageous and costs the state not a cent for its acquisition, while the expenditure for filling in and concrete work would be merely nominal when compared to the money spent for village terminals upstate, where the traffic is not one-twentieth the volume of that being carried on in Rondout creek and the harbor. The State made no mistake in re-electing the Republican officials. Kingston will have visible proof to that effect before another year has rolled around.

One of the most significant of election day results was the defeat of woman suffrage in the two States which voted on it—West Virginia and South Dakota. New York and other States are bound to vote the same way next year. It is the opinion of competent observers that the votes-for-women fad is near collapse. It is true that some of the shouting sisters are trying to make out that they influenced the Presidential election to some extent, but the facts are against them. Woman suffrage does nothing except increase taxes by looting election expenses, unless we tainment furnished by the "Petticoat Special" and other exhibitions of like kind during the campaign. attribute value to the rough enter-

Men seeking to draw a lesson from the election need look no further than Ulster county and the unsurpassed majority given by Ulster's sons for District Attorney Frederick G. Traver which reaches almost five thousand—lacking only twenty-six of that figure—the largest majority ever given for any candidate in Ulster. The lesson is that honesty, fearlessness, competency, faithfulness, courtesy, affability, willingness to oblige where straightforwardness to duty is not thereby surrendered, and a sincere democratic demeanor unmarred by vanity, pays. The combination of such characteristics makes the true American, and District Attorney Traver is all of that. Kingston city, where he has spent most of his life, took pleasure in making his majority of 1,598. One must look a long time backward to find its equal, and it may not be found even then. Evidently the rest of the county thought just as much of Mr. Traver as the city did, because the city and the county outside the city each gave him the same percentage of their vote—55 per cent. A fraction over fifty per cent would have been enough to elect him, but the extra fifteen per cent was the county's good measure of expression of the confidence and affection old Ulster has for him.

"She's fond of every kind of animal, isn't she?" "I don't think she cares much for her husband"—Life.

"I've seen some pretty bad joints in my time." "What are you—a reformer or a crook?" "Not exactly—I'm a plumber!"—Judge.

"Some men fails to tell the truth," said Lacie Eben, "simply because dey's overburdened wif originality and a desire to please"—Washington Star.

Wife—"That girl in the opposite flat is quite a promising singer." Hub—"Well, get her to promise that she won't sing any more."—Boston Transcript.

"If they put an embargo on wheat, then the housekeepers will begin to complain." "Why will they?" "Because it will keep the bread from rising."—Baltimore American.

The Cause.

A Philadelphia woman has long purchased fish from a certain market dealer of that city. One day, when the prices seemed much too high, the housewife complained; and her complaint met with the following reply:

"Yessum fish is high—Yassum! Ain't no doubt 'bout that! Fish is awful high! Yo see, mum, fish is awful high! Yo see, mum, fish is gettin' scarce on account of all these 'fish aquariums!'—The Youth's Companion.

Taking Tom's Measure.

A traveling tailor calling at a farmhouse the other day, pressed for an order, extolling his wares in the usual eloquent manner, but was again and again refused. When the farmer got out on business to a neighbor's a couple of miles away, the enterprising tailor walked with him, still urging business. At length, tired out with the man's importunity, the farmer said: "Well, when I have done at this farm you can walk back wif me and measure our Tom for a suit."

"Thanks, thanks," replied the tailor. "I shall be very glad to measure you for a suit and I know it will please you."

Accordingly the two started back the tailor in high glee at the prospective order, though he felt the four-mile walk out of his way.

"Now then, Betsey," said the farmer entering the house and glancing shyly at his wife, "where's our Tom? I've told this chap he can measure him for a suit. 'Here, Tom!' continued the old man opening the kitchen door. 'Come here!' And out walked a fine tom cat, but when the farmer looked up the tailor was holding furiously away—London Tit Bits.

No Scandal.

Amo, the guests at a Washington function were a professor attached to the government and a young old dame. When the professor found that it devolved upon him to talk to this lady he was at a loss at first. Eventually, however, he took a chance and ventured to speak of his work. "You see," he observed after a while, "the science of chemistry depends on the discovery of certain affinities." "You wif banion me," said the prim old lady. "I trust the conversation may proceed without drifting into scandal!"—Everybody's Magazine.

What It All Meant.

A bashful young Scot had no courage to speak for himself. At last one Sabbath night he said: "Jane, do you ken I were here Monday night?" "Aye." "And I were here Wednesday and Thursday?" "Aye." "And I were here Friday and again last night?" "So you were." "And here I am tonight." "Yes." Finally, in desperation, "Woman, do you no smell a rat?"—Rural New Yorker.

His One Fear.

Evelyn is very cowardly, and her father decided to have a serious talk with his little daughter.

"Father," she said at the close of his lecture, "when you see a cow, aren't you afraid?"

"No, certainly not Evelyn."

"When you see a dumblebee, aren't you afraid?"

"No," with scorn.

"Aren't you afraid when it thunders?"

"No," with laughter. "Oh, you silly child!"

"Papa," said Evelyn, solemnly, "aren't you afraid of nothing in the world but mama?"—Short Stories.

Safeguards in Buildings.

The man who intends to build will not take heed of the man who has had an unfortunate experience in building, because he feels that he is shrewd enough to look after his own interests and safeguard his own rights, notwithstanding the fact that he is engaging for the time being in a business enterprise that is totally foreign to him. If he sets out to buy a five cent loaf of bread he gets a loaf of bread for 3 cents. If he sets out to build a residence for $25,000 there are no good reasons why he should not be able to do it for that amount. He should definitely know two things—first, exactly what he is going to get for the price he expects to pay and, second, the outside limit of cost for the completed structure. To demand these safeguards is perfectly fair and natural, for in every phase of business today, except building, one knows just what the cost of any specified piece of work will be.—Noble Foster Higgins in Countryman Magazine.

Stag Parties.

"I wonder why they call them stag parties?" remarked the man who had just received an invitation to attend one. "It's probably an allusion to that well-known quotation, 'The stag at eye has drunk his fill,'" replied his wife meaningly.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

They Are Not Compelled to Vote For Their Party Candidate.

A presidential elector is an independent agent. As a matter of practice he votes for the candidate chosen at the convention of his party, but he can legally break the instruction, just as a delegate to that convention could have done.

There have been a number of instances in our history where this has been done.

Hence if a presidential candidate were to die the day before the election all the states would on the following day vote for their two sets of presidential electors in the routine way.

These presidential electors who are chosen in November are obliged to meet in the various states on the second Monday in January following. That is the day the president of the United States is actually chosen.

That these electors were intended to be free agents and to act as they deemed best is plainly inferred by the twelfth amendment to the constitution of the United States. It says:

"They shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as president and of all persons voted for as vice president."

When that amendment was adopted after the Jefferson-Burr battle of 1801 there had never been any political conventions and the presidential electors of the various states were expected to form as many conventions and there to choose a president.

In practice the presidential electors act merely as automatons. They permit the national conventions to do their thinking.

If one of the candidates selected by the national conventions were to die just prior to election day the national committee of that party would some time after the election and prior to the second Monday in January designate a candidate.

That recommendation would carry all the weight of a national convention. But in neither case is the recommendation binding.

Since national conventions were first held in Andrew Jackson's time no presidential candidate has died before the election.

When Van Buren was elected president no one was elected vice president. The United States senate then exercised its prerogative and elected R. M. Johnson vice president.

A presidential elector in a New England state refused to follow his party and vote for James Monroe "just so he could not be unanimously elected, as was George Washington."

Eleven states did not vote at all for president in 1864. In 1868 three states that had tried to secede could not vote.

In 1850 one of California's presidential electors who had been chosen by the Democrats refused to vote for Hancock. That state therefore gave Garfield one elector and Hancock five.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Where the Ark Rested.

We struggled painfully through the mud and at sunrise on the fourth day came in sight of Mount Ararat from the hilltop above Erzerum. I was so posing sight I never saw that this huge snow clad hump, with its attendant peaked gendarmes at its side. Though the ranges on each side of it are 6,000 feet high, it seems to rise alone from the plain and looms so large as to absolutely annihilate the great level plain, thirty miles across, which separates you from it. Heavy snowstorms had ranged over it for weeks, and the snow was lying to within 6,000 feet of sea level. The summit is represented in the latest surveys to be nearly 20,000 feet above the sea, so there were 14,000 feet of snow lying on it, and the shiling mass seemed to rise and soar into the blue sky from beneath our very feet.—Professor Conybeare in New Armenia.

Coon meat looks and tastes something like guinea fowl, being dark and tough unless fixed up right. A coon is more dainty and precise than a possum about what it eats. A possum like a hog, will eat anything, any sort of carcass.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"I see by The Freeman that State Committeeman William C. DeWitt and a few of 'My Democrats' hurried across to Rhinecliff on Friday to shake hands with President Wilson and tell him how 'My Flying Squadron' had toured the county in his behalf, resulting in the rolling up for Mr. Hughes and the rest of the Republican ticket of the biggest majority ever given in Ulster county," said the friend to the street corner politician.

"Yes, but did you hear the message that Mr. DeWitt sent to the president," asked the politician.

"No, what was that," queried the friend.

"Well," said the politician, "it seems that just as Mr. DeWitt and 'His Democrats' got to the creek the ferry had pulled out, but Andrew J. Murphy, Jr., and a few friends were preparing to cross the river in Jimmy Spadafora's motorboat, and Mr. DeWitt, leaning anxiously down, implored those in the motorboat to 'See the secret service men—they know me—and tell them State Committeeman William C. DeWitt is on the other side and wants to see the president and have him hold the train until Mr. DeWitt gets over as he wants to shake hands with him.'"

The politician paused a moment to light his cigar and the friend asked "What happened?"

"Why Mr. DeWitt at that point determined to carry 'The message to Garcia' himself and on being invited jumped into the motorboat, and got over in time so that President Wilson did not have to hold the train for his arrival," replied the politician. "But Wilson would have held the train if he had got the message, you can bet on that."

"I see that Corporation Counsel W. D. Brinnier and Judge Betts also went over with Mr. DeWitt," said the friend.

"Yes, but that had no political significance," replied the politician, "as Brinnier and Betts are the only living charter members of the Old Guard while DeWitt is aspiring to fill the shoes of Roscoe Irwin who put the Old Guard to rout."

"So you think it was only a friendly spirit that caused them to cross the river on the off chance of shaking hands with President Wilson?" asked the friend.

"Yes, that is about it," replied the politician, "for considering the fact that Ulster county went strong for Mr. Hughes it was hardly likely that they had any intention of asking the president if he would bear the county in mind when he came to make any appointments in his cabinet."

"Still do you think there is cabinet timber in the local Democratic party?" asked the friend.

"Well, they might suggest that Jimmy Spadafora, who ferried them across in his motorboat, be appointed secretary of the navy, but I am not sure whether Jimmy is a Democrat or not, but that would make no difference," replied the politician with a chuckle.

"That is not answering my question, though," insisted the friend.

"Well, considering the episode when the Democratic parade Thursday evening went by a certain private residence in the lower section of the city I hesitate to express an opinion."

"Why," queried the friend.

"Because I am afraid you have Democratic tendencies and might be offended," replied the politician, chuckling.

"Changing the subject for a moment," said the friend, "I can't see why the public buildings can't be kept in as good repair as a private residence without having to spend a lot of money every once in a while."

"That is an easy one," replied the politician, "if you remember the lower corridor of the city hall was only recently painted and decorated, and yet the other night one of the members of the common council in passing through the corridor deliberately scratched a match on the newly painted wall, leaving a black streak on the paint."

"You don't mean it," said the friend.

"I can show you the mark and similar ones too," replied the politician, "and if a city father has no more brains than to scratch a match on a newly painted wall, you cannot expect the general public to be more careful where they scratch matches on city property, can you?"

"Well, the country has decided to frame and hang the mottoes, 'He Kept Us Out of War,' and 'Too Proud to Fight,' in the front room for another four years by the looks of the returns," writes Old Subscriber.

"I see by the newspapers that a Democrat held a great celebration," writes Constant Reader.

"What you might call too much Wilson."

Christianity and Modern Religions.

Beginning on Sunday evening, the pastor, Rev. Arthur S. Cole, will preach a series of three sermons at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church on the general topic, "Christianity and Modern Religions." These sermons will deal frankly and fairly with certain modern religious conceptions, which may or may not have been definitely formulated into systems of beliefs, but which nevertheless exist in the minds of many people today as substitutes for true Christianity. The true and the false in these modern religions will both be pointed out, and the highest truth found in life and teachings of Christ will be emphasized. This Sunday evening the topic of the sermon will be "The Religion of an Impersonal God." The others to follow will be on "The Religion of Humanity," and "The Religion of Morality."

ARCHDEACONRY OF ORANGE'S MEETING

Newburgh Session Held Wednesday and Invitation of Kingston Member Accepted for Next Gathering—Address by the Rev. Dr. Lubeck.

In Wednesday, November 8, in St. George's Church, Newburgh, Archdeacon Pott called the eleventh regular meeting of the Archdeaconry of Orange to order. Archdeacon Pott, Revs. Messrs. Profetta, Keane, Seymour, McGuinness, Page, Haight, Pire, Smithers, Case, Chow, Whitney, Heartfield, Royce, Symonds, Pickles, Hobson, Sutcliffe, Bott, Davies, Cameron, Searing, Gardiner, Reid. Of the latter there were present Messrs. Hasbrouck, Deiseroth, Harrison, J. Harrison, Jordan, Wilsee, Wand, Wilcox, Van Vleet, Titchett and Rose.

The minutes were read and approved.

The Rev. W. J. Clarke Agnew was elected secretary, the Rev. F. S. Smithers, treasurer. To serve on the board of managers of Diocesan, Missionary and Church Extension Society were elected Rev. Mr. Bott of Kingston and Mr. Hathaway of Port Jervis for Ulster county. Rev. Mr. Pise of Goshen and A. S. Murray for Orange county. Rev. M. Keane of Spring Valley and Mr. Chiear of Sparkill for Rockland county. Rev. Mr. Reid of Monticello and Henry Jarvis for Sullivan county.

The Archdeacon then read his report.

The report of the treasurer was read and accepted.

The resolution was read on the death of Rev. Mr. Mansfield.

The Rev. Mr. Heartfield made his report on preparation for the meeting of the Archdeaconry.

The invitation of Rev. Mr. Bott for the Archdeaconry to meet in Kingston was accepted. A vote of thanks was extended to the rector and people of St. George's Church for their hospitality.

At 12 m. there was an address by Rev. Dr. Lubeck. At 1 p. m., luncheon was served.

At 2:30 p. m. was a conference led by Dr. Lubeck.

At 6 p. m. supper was served.

At 8 p. m. there was a missionary mass meeting, addressed by Rev. H. C. Stone on Stoneman Fellowship.

On Thursday morning at 7:30 there was a corporate communion. At 8:30 a. m., breakfast and 9:30 the last address by Dr. Lubeck.

The report of Archdeacon Pott was as follows: To the Bishop and Brethren of the Archdeaconry of Orange:—

It is a privilege to be permitted to present to you the report of the Archdeaconry of Orange. It is a privilege to be permitted to present to you the report of the Archdeaconry of Orange.

Both men are doing most commendable work and seem in every way adapted to their fields. Liberty is already provided in the dioceses to be covered and the infrequency of Sunday trains necessitating this added equipment. Callicoon should be similarly provided at the earliest possible moment. There is a long stretch in the valley of the Delaware, between Callicoon and Port Jervis, where the church has as yet made no effort. We have now, in the present vicar of Callicoon, a man fitted for this work of exploration, and willing to undertake it. As soon as possible we must furnish him with a car.

An experiment is being made in Callicoon, the outcome of which should be watched with considerable interest. Mr. Shrewsbury has rented a store for neighborhood work, which he hopes to conduct on the broadest possible lines. Something of this sort for the young people of Callicoon has been long needed.

The chapel at Liberty has not yet been erected. Plans have been drawn for a building to cost $20,000 and have passed the diocesan committee on architecture. We have on hand about $6,000. The remaining $3,000 must be procured in some way before the spring. There is no place in the Archdeaconry where a dignified church, representing adequately the church's interest in the peculiar problems of a community, is so needed.

For the rest, the work in Sullivan county has progressed along former lines, and according to reports, has been in every way satisfactory.

In Ulster county, we are pleased to report the acceptance of the Rev. Blair Larned of the rectory of St. John's, Kingston. I am confident that in your name I can offer him the heartiest of welcomes. Rifton, unfortunately, is becoming more and more of a deserted village. Occasional services are still maintained there. We have an excellent property, and the little chapel has served a useful purpose in the past. Until the mill reopens, however, there is no possibility of aggressive work. The Rev. W. J. C. Agnew has provided a car to facilitate the covering of his large field, and we hope that additional preaching stations may shortly be opened in this region. So, too, in the section of Ulster lying behind Marlborough and Jilton, the rector of Marlborough having been provided with a car.

The Rev. E. D. Sutcliffe, who for so many years has faithfully served at New Paltz and Highland, has found it necessary to resign the rectory of these churches.

Mr. Paltz will be ministered to in the future by Kenneth I. Rice, a deacon, who has had considerable experience in the past. Mr. Rice is a native of Newburgh, and will provide for a liberalization of the holy communion.

The parish of the Holy Cross in Kingston has not yet solved its problem. For the rest, there is a wholesome and satisfactory progress in Ulster along wanted lines.

In Orange county, there have been no changes in the clerical staff, and very little in the nature of the work planned and undertaken. The Rev. J. M. Vickar, rector of Highland Falls, in addition to the services for colored enlisted men and their families in the parish church, has assumed the charge of the mission at Fort Montgomery, thus providing a necessary relief for our overworked missionary at Tomkins Cove. The Rev. Dr. McGuinness reports that there is now every likelihood of our being able to secure a clear title to the Quaker Meeting House at Highland Falls. This we purpose purchasing. The name of the mission at Highland Falls will then be changed to St. David's, thus preserving the name of one of the first three church foundations in Orange county.

In Rockland county, I would especially stress the fruitful and constructive work of our missionary at Tomkins Cove. Perhaps the church has never been in so thriving a condition as at present. The congregation at Valley Cottage the southernmost station, has purchased unadorned, a suitable site for its future chapel, and has laid the foundation of a building fund. St. Luke's Church, Haverstraw, has awakened, and with its reconverted rectory, has made most remarkable strides in the past three months. Most interesting of all, however, is the progress made in the mountain missions of Willow Grove and Mount Ivy—especially in the former has the interest manifested been most encouraging. Sixty to sixty people gathered for the Sunday evening service, the largest number of worshippers being especially noticeable. A preaching station to the north of Tomkins Cove, at Doodletown, has recently been opened. It is too early at present to say with what success. As soon as we are able to compass it, we must supply this field with another lay-reader. The work is developing too rapidly for the supervision of one priest and one lay-reader.

For the rest, in Rockland county there have been no noteworthy changes. Such are the conditions in the Orange Archdeaconry.

It is my wish and expectation to continue during the coming year the local conferences with the clergy, which in the two most fruitful portions of our Archdeaconry have been so fruitful in the past. If possible, we should again this spring visit to hold Bishop's Weeks in our northern and western conferences. Perhaps this would be a fitting opportunity to express to my brethren my most grateful appreciation of the support they have invariably given me in all my undertakings. It has been a joy to work in the Archdeaconry of Orange. Especially would I express my indebtedness to the committee who have arranged for this present meeting, and who also served us so faithfully and efficiently in planning last winter for preaching missions in our archdeaconry.

The following are the statistics of the Orange Archdeaconry:

Number of assisted parishes, organized missions and preaching stations.....39

For maintaining services in these stations there are employed 17 presbyters, 2 deacons and 2 lay-readers.

The report from these 39 stations, for the year October, 1915, to October, 1916, summarizes as follows:

Number of families.....1655

Number of baptized persons.....4113

Number of communicants.....2201

Number of S. S. teachers.....122

Number of S. S. scholars.....1193

Number of guilds and organizations.....69

Baptisms.....171

Contributions.....$384.23

Marriages.....60

Burials.....122

Expenses.....$23,175.50

Respectfully submitted,
W. W. POTT,
Archdeacon of New York.

While the Germans never actually captured Verdun, they took most of its outer fortresses, and because General Mangin drove them out of these positions, the French regard him as the “reconqueror of Verdun.” General Mangin worked under the direction of General Nivelle and General Joffre, but it was he who directed all of the close-in and hand-to-hand fighting.

Daddy of Them All.

Jack, whose four years of life had been spent on the farm, visited his city cousins recently and was taken to see the strange creatures in a zoo. He insisted on running ahead of his elders, and when overtaken was brimming with questions about his discoveries. However, when he first saw an ostrich his amazement held him speechless. Then he turned and with a gasp exclaimed, “That's surely some duck!”

Valuable Jerusalem Artichoke.

It appears from Professor Strakosch's figures that the most efficient of all economic plants is the Jerusalem artichoke. This justly valued vegetable produces on an acre of good land about 7,122 pounds of starch and other digestible substances. It takes from the soil incidentally $28 worth of material. But the difference between consumption and production, in terms of value, is $116.

New Source of Atropine.

It has been ascertained that the plant Datura alba, which grows wild in abundance in almost every part of the Philippine Islands, now currently obtained for the drug trade from Atropa Belladonna L., a plant of the temperate zone. Chemists say alba also contains in addition to atropine, hyoscyamine, an alkaloid now employed in producing “twilight sleep.”

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

I have broken two crank shafts on my car in the past few months and in both instances was driving the car on a smooth road at about twenty miles per hour. Both shafts broke in the same place, just forward of the rear main bearing, and after taking the motor down I failed to find anything out of true either time. The bearings were fairly tight, and there was no lost motion to amount to anything anywhere. I drive with the spark advanced all it will bear without causing the engine to knock. Could it be possible that by giving the motor the gas too suddenly with the spark advanced all the way down while driving at a speed of twenty miles per hour would have anything to do with the crank shafts breaking?

Without seeing the crank shaft it is hard to pass upon the causes of your trouble. It is hardly possible that the trouble results from defective material, as it is unlikely that you would receive two shafts which were not up to standard in so short a period. Neither does it seem possible that the trouble could result from manipulation of the spark and throttle in the way you suggest.

Investigation will probably show that the trouble results from crystallization following operation in a motor in which insufficient oil has been used at some time. It may also be due to loose or improperly adjusted bearings or to some part of the motor being out of blue. This condition could come from a continuous misfiring of the engine.

In tightening up the main bearings of a car I should think that when the strap is bolted on after the shims are removed the crank shaft would be sprung out of line. Is this so, and is there any way to overcome it?

Removal of shims does not change the alignment. The shaft presses against the top of the bearing in the same place with the strap loose or tightened by removing shims.

Can you give me the correct method of focusing the headlights on a car?

The method given below is about as simple as any, although there are many ways in which the job can be done. Locate the car forty feet from a wall, preferably white. Best results, of course, will follow if the adjusting is done at night. Throw the lights on to this wall and adjust them so that the circle of light from each lamp will be close to three feet in diameter and the edges of these circles will nearly touch. There should be a distance of about one and one-half feet from the ground to the lowest point of each circle.

The distinctive clink commonly known as a carbon knock developed in my motor, and I had the carbon burned out. This did not seem to improve matters very much, as the knock still occurs when the accelerator is depressed. Occasionally while on the road this will cease for an hour or two and then recommence without my having touched anything. The trouble is less pronounced when the motor is very hot, as after a stiff climb. What can be the cause of this? Also when running on first or second speed the gears make a terrible noise. At times, for no apparent reason, they can scarcely be heard. The trouble here seems to be connected with the engine trouble mentioned above, as the two occur at the same time. Can you tell me the reason for this?

It would seem from what you submit that the engine is misaligned in the frame or loose. At times the alignment may be correct, thus causing the gears to act silently, whereas at another time the engine may become dislocated, throwing everything out of line, causing the knock you speak of as well as the growl in the gears.

It is suggested that you look into the fastenings of the engine to see if any of the bolts have become loosened.

Does the injection of steam into the intake manifold from the water cooling system act effectively as a decarbonizer for motorcar engines?

It is said to, although we have no records of accurate tests which would bear out the claim. There are several devices on the market to perform this act in motor car engines.

Reports of experiments tend to show that the injection of steam or water vapor into the cylinders does tend to loosen up carbon deposits and prevent the formation of carbon.

I have been told that it is helpful to the engine in removing carbon to get it hot and then pour kerosene into the auxiliary air inlet of the carburetor, with the engine running fast enough to suck it up with the gas and then to pour water into the manifold or auxiliary air intake. It was claimed that the water, hitting the heated carbon, would crack it off. Is this so, and would the water hurt the heated engine parts in any way?

The water will not hurt the engine parts, neither will the kerosene, and both are useful in removing carbon. There is the danger of getting water or kerosene mixed with the lubricating oil, so impairing its lubricating qualities that it will harm the motor. It is not advisable to pour water into the manifold. Some of it is going back into the carburetor, and gasoline and water do not mix. Steam is a different proposition, because it will enter the cylinder as a vapor.

Knew All About That.

“Tommy” said his father, “if you had a little more spunk you would stand better in your classes. Do you know what spunk is?” “Yes, sir,” replied the little fellow: “Spunk is the past of spunk.”

Will you please explain the workings of the thermo syphon system of water circulation, its advantages and disadvantages. Why is it not more universally used?

The thermo-syphon system of water circulation consists of an outlet from the radiator through which water enters the coiled chambers around the cylinders at the bottom, becomes heated and rises, passing back through a pipe entering the radiator at the top. The action of the fan keeps the radiator cool, and this operation keeps up a constant circulation of water as long as the engine is hot. It may become clogged if sediment gathers in the radiator, but that would be almost, if not equally true, of a pump system. Some engine designers favor the pump system, especially if the engine is of the larger type, arguing that the pump is more positive in its action, even though less simple than the thermo-syphon. The thermo-syphon is used more extensively in cars with small motors than on those having large displacement.

What is the function of the belts of rivets in the rear wheels of some cars? In some there is a bolt in every spoke and in others one in every other spoke, and in others there is none at all.

The rivets are there to hold the spokes in place. In those where bolts are not visible the spokes are locked by internal bolts or pins.

Do you advise the use of powdered graphite in the crank case of a splash system engine? Oil is pumped into the main bearings and troughs into which the cranks dip. Will either have any bad effect on the motor?

Powdered graphite is not to be recommended in the crank case in a splash system engine. While graphite will not materially injure the working parts, it will have a tendency to clog up the various oil holes and grooves and possibly prevent the proper flow of oil to the respective bearing surfaces. It is not necessary, and the advantages to be gained by its use are not worth the experiment. Would advise your using a high grade oil, free from as much graphite or carbon ingredients as possible.

There is a knock in the engine of my car when I run below eight or nine miles an hour. It has been equipped with a new carburetor, which gives from seventeen to eighteen miles to the gallon of gasoline. The engine works well above eight or nine miles. What is the trouble?

It is probable that this knock is caused by one or more of the cylinders missing at low speeds, and it may be that in installing the new carburetor this has been so adjusted as to cause this missing. It might be that a change in the adjustment of the carburetor will cure all the trouble. If this does not do it, no doubt the location of the cause will be found in the valves or ignition.

Sometimes it happens that a valve does not seat all the way, causing the motor to misfire in the same way as it would if the valves needed grinding. This may be due to too close an adjustment in the clearance. A misadjustment in the ignition will give the same kind of trouble. The timing should be set so that when the spark lever is in full retard position the spark occurs on upper dead center.

In all probability, though, the trouble will be found in the carburetor, which is providing, in all likelihood, too lean a mixture at low speeds. The fact that you are getting as high an economy as you are may also signify that the setting is a little too lean.

Is a car geared four to one with 34 by 4 inch tires higher geared than one geared four to one with 32 by 4 inch tires? If not, please explain.

Yes. The larger the tire the higher the gearing. As an example of this principle roll a golf ball and a tennis ball side by side at the same speed over a flat surface. The golf ball will rotate much faster than the tennis ball because its diameter is smaller. Looking at it another way, a thirty-two inch tire has a circumference of approximately 100 inches; a thirty-four inch tire has a circumference of approximately 107 inches. With both tires rotating at the same speed the larger one will travel approximately seven inches farther than the smaller. In other words, it takes less engine speed to drive the car a given distance with the larger tire than it does with the small.

I have a 1907 model car which runs all right on reverse, low and intermediate gears. But when I shift into high the car bucks and comes to a stop, and then when shifted into intermediate it will not start. What do you think causes this trouble?

In a case similar to the one you mention the backing of the engine was found to be due to worn out pistons and cylinders. The engine had no power, and as soon as the gears were thrown into high speed it was unable to carry the load. Since your car is a 1907 model it is very probable that after nine years of service the pistons and cylinders as well as the valves will have become considerably worn, the loss of power which you describe doubtless being due to these conditions.

CHILDREN OF THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE. DAUGHTERS OF CANADA'S NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

London, Nov. 10.—The three daughters of the Duke of Devonshire, Canada's new Governor-General, are expected to accompany the Duke and Duchess to Canada shortly, when the Duke will assume his office. The photograph of the three young ladies was made recently in Hyde Park, London. From left to right they are Ladies Rachael, Dorothy, Anne and Blanche Cavendish.

The Great Man.

The Hero can be Poet, Prophet, King, Priest or what you will, according to the kind of world he finds himself born into. I confess, I have no notion of a truly great man that could not be all sorts of man. The poet who could merely sit on a chair and compose stanzas would never make a stanza worth much. He could not sing the heroic warriors, unless he himself were at least a heroic warrior, too. I fancy there is in him the Politician, the Thinker, Legislator, Philosopher—in one or the other degree, he could have been, he is all these.—Carlyle.

Improving.

The mere monologist, however clever, is universally voted a bore among us; the wit who wanted to crush people, like Samuel Rogers, we simply would not tolerate. All this is because we are kinder, and whether it means that we are less brilliant or not it certainly means that we are better man-nered.

Excellent Advice.

I came across the following clipping from a medical journal which had been hidden away in a box: “Talk less, breathe more; eat less, chew more; ride less, walk more; clothe less, bathe more; worry less, work more; waste less, give more; write less, read more; preach less, practice more.” A whole sermon in one period. We have been humored into a belief that deep breathing is the source of good health or of good lungs at least, and the gospel of fresh air is preached everywhere on the globe, I reckon.—Exchange.

The “When and Where.”

“When and where do you begin to train a child so that it will not tell lies and steal?” inquires a young mother of Nashville. The “when” is when the child is about eighteen months old. The “where” is located on the south side of the child when it is headed north, and half-way between its head and its heels.—Houston Post.

Son of the Gods.

It does not make much difference what instrument a son of the gods sings to, so long as it fits his song, writes Harriet Monroe. He may cut his own reed by the river, or find an old violin in a junk shop, or play the church organ, or pound the bass drum, or whisper through the elusive piccolo—anything so long as he chooses the right mood for his lingering or leaping or dancing words, the right music for the feeling that outruns them.

“Pigeons” Milk.

Anyone who, when a child, was sent to the store for “pigeons” milk may console himself with the knowledge that the practical joke was on the practical person. For “pigeons” milk is not a myth but a common term for a liquid secreted by these domesticated birds. It is made in the parent crop from half-digested grain and fed to the young, which come in pairs two or three times a year.—New York World.

AMERICAN SHIP REPORTED SHE LLED BY SUBMARINE.

Steamship Columbian.

London, Nov. 11.—Almost coincident with the admiralty announcement of the sinking of the Peninsular and Oriental Liners Arabia by a submarine without warning, it was reported here that the American-Hawaiian steamship Columbian, flying the American flag and under American registry, had sent out wireless calls for help, stating that she was being shelled by a submarine.

No further word has been received from the vessel and her fate is in doubt.

SOME TROUBLE OVER A TEA BILL

Mrs. Canfield of Grand Street Swears Out Warrant For Arrest of Tea Merchant and Then Fails to Appear in Court.

Friday Mrs. Viranday Canfield of No. 30 Grand street appeared before Recorder Lang and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Edward P. Shea, who conducts a tea store on lower Hasbrouck avenue, charging Mr. Shea with breaking in the back door of her residence and damaging the door to the amount of $8. Recorder Lang informed her at the time that the case would come up for trial in recorder's court this morning at 9 o'clock. The police also informed her to be present at that time. This morning Mr. Shea was arrested but Mrs. Canfield failed to put in an appearance. Recorder Lang held the case open until a quarter after 9 o'clock, and as Mrs. Canfield still was absent, and no word had been heard from her, the recorder discharged Mr. Shea.

Mr. Shea explained to Recorder Lang that Mrs. Canfield owed the tea company he represented for a bill of goods. He had gone around to the Canfield house several times to collect. The first time he was admitted to the house, and after he had explained his business he left in a hurry as he said Mrs. Canfield made a "flunk" movement with the stove. Thursday he called again at the house, and saw that some one was home, and he went around to the back door and knocked. It got no response. He said he noticed the door was in bad condition, but he did not think his knocking would cause the panels to fall in, but they did, and he saw that a woman stood behind the door. He left in a hurry as he said he was afraid that the next thing that would meet him would be boiling hot water.

At the close of Mr. Shea's story he asked the recorder what steps would be necessary to take to collect the bill. Recorder Lang informed him that that was a matter that should come up in city court.

CAPT. JEFF HEALY

Captain Jeff Healy.

Captain Jeff Healy may be lost to the Columbia football team for the rest of the season. According to an announcement made from the training quarters of the Blue and White Eleven, Captain Healy was cut down from behind in the recent game with Stevens, and the ligaments in his knee torn.

It was against this cutting down from behind that G. Foster Sanford complained at the meeting of the football rules committee last fall. He described the practice of "ham-stringing, ankle-breaking, face-smashing play that is detrimental to football and should be abolished." With Healy out of action the left side of the Columbia line will lose much of its power and drive.

SOUTH RONDOUT.

South Rondout, Nov. 11.—A pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Knud Olson on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when their oldest daughter, Bertha Olson and Edward Olson, of Sleightsburgh were united in marriage by Rev. John Anthony, pastor of the South Rondout M. E. Church, only the immediate families being present. The house was prettily decorated with palms, ferns and chrysanthemums. The bride's gown was cream chiffon over satin and she carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid was Miss Harriet, a sister of the bride, who wore cream voile and carried chrysanthemums. The best man was Charles Kelse, a nephew of the groom. The wedding march was played by Miss Mildred, a sister of the bride. The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a bar pin of emeralds and diamonds to Miss Mildred, a pearl necklace to Miss Harriet, a pearl knife. After congratulations, they retired to the dining room, where a bountiful repast was served. The bride's going-away suit was brown broadcloth, with hat to match. They left on the N. Y. Central 6:30 train for a short wedding trip. After their return they will reside with the groom's mother at Sleightsburgh. Miss Olson will be greatly missed in church and Sunday school, as she has been secretary of the Sunday school for a number of years and a member of the choir.

Miss Julia Oulton and John Blitzer were married on Wednesday afternoon by Father Gearin of the church of the Presentation at Port Ewen. The bridesmaid was Miss May Buchanan of Kingston and the best man was Joseph Blitzer, a brother of the groom. In the evening a reception was held at the groom's home on Front street. Guests were present from Kingston, New York and Weehawken. They received a number of useful presents. They have rented one of the cottages of John Gurney, and will be at home to their friends next week.

The attraction is brightened by a large chorus of girls whose charms are not confined to their voices, and singing, dancing, dash and color are never lacking. The Imperial Quartet is one of the features of the show, which throughout is one of the best, well-acted musical comedies of the season.
